Thanks, Michael and Mike.

For awareness, embassy is expecting to speak later today with DHS Under Secretary Rob Silvers (his request) and with Michigan Representative Dan Kildee (his request) on the border situation.

Also for awareness Michigan Governor Whitmer released a strong statement this morning (pasted below) calling on Canada to resolve the situation; and Representative Elissa Slotkin – a moderate Democrat - released a Twitter thread (also pasted below) decrying her state's vulnerability to foreign supply chains and stating that "we have to bring American manufacturing back home".

Governor Whitmer Calls on Canada to Reopen Traffic on Ambassador Bridge

Governor urges authorities to resolve bridge blockade so manufacturing, agriculture in Midwest can continue humming along

LANSING, Mich. – Governor Gretchen Whitmer issued the following statement urging Canadian authorities to quickly resolve the ongoing Ambassador Bridge closure and its impacts on the Michigan's economy, including key sectors like autos, agriculture, manufacturing, and more.

"My message is simple: reopen traffic on the bridge.

"In Michigan, our economy continues to grow because of our hardworking people and innovative small businesses. Now, that momentum is at risk. Commercial traffic is at a standstill at the Ambassador Bridge and heavily backed up at the Blue Water Bridge.

"The blockade is having a significant impact on Michigan's working families who are just trying to do their jobs. Our communities and automotive, manufacturing, and agriculture businesses are feeling the effects. It's hitting paychecks and production lines. That is unacceptable.

“The Ambassador Bridge is the busiest land border crossing in North America, used by tens of thousands of commuters and truck drivers carrying hundreds of millions of dollars of goods every day. Countless Michiganders rely on this daily flow of goods and people to get things done.

“It is imperative that Canadian local, provincial, and national governments de-escalate this economic blockade. They must take all necessary and appropriate steps to immediately and safely reopen traffic so we can continue growing our economy, supporting good-paying jobs, and lowering costs for families.”

Rep. Elissa Slotkin (D-MI-8) | US House

If we needed another example of why supply chains matter, look no further: the blockade of the Ambassador Bridge, the busiest border crossing in America, is already creating major disruptions for our businesses in Michigan. Delta Assembly Plant cancels shift due to parts shortage tied to Ambassador Bridge protest.

Michiganders have been saying for decades that when our manufacturing is outsourced too much, we end up paying the price. It doesn't matter if it's an adversary or an ally – we can't be this reliant on parts coming from foreign countries.

I've been in contact with the White House today about this situation, and they are closely following these events. We are all waiting for Prime Minister Trudeau's way forward.

The one thing that couldn't be more clear is that we have to bring American manufacturing back home to states like Michigan. If we don't, it's American workers like the folks at Delta Township who are left holding the bag.

Hi Michael,

s.38 [REDACTED]

At the same time, Windsor Police have come into PCO asking for Federal assistance (police officers) and part of that request is for tow trucks.

I suspect this will be discussed today at both our Daily Ministerial briefing and a possible s.39 [REDACTED]

Looping you in for GAC awareness, and possibly involvement in Ministerial or DM convos/work/action.
